

Breugelmans Limousines goes for Hybrid Cars

Chauffeur-driven limousines can be found all over the world, and are more and more in demand. We talk about comfortable but discrete luxury cars, driven by styled and well-informed drivers. They facilitate the transfers of passengers giving them the opportunity to use at their convenience the time spent in the car, at a reasonable price. The introduction of hybrid limousines with reduced fuel consumption and a limited emission of CO2 now offers an extra choice for clients sensitive to the ecological environment.

Breugelmans Limousines & Services, a company that celebrates its tenth anniversary, is the first to have moved towards this ecological approach in Belgium. After acquiring two small but comfortable Toyota Prius, the first-ever hybrid cars, Breugelmans Limousines now introduces its second hybrid Lexus. “We are proud to be among the very first to support the efforts that help diminish the expulsion of CO2 gas”, says Patrice Breugelmans, founder of the company, adding that he is pleasantly surprised by the positive response from his clients.

The limousine now added to the fleet is the Lexus LS 600h L. New on the market, with advantages that cannot be ignored, the car is equipped with two motors. A silent electrical one automatically takes over when driving slowly, in town, in traffic jams. The fuel motor is activated on the main road. This is a hybrid offering unequalled comfort. Fuel and electricity can join forces to intensify the power whenever needed, and the thermic motor recharges the batteries of the electric motor while driving.

Breugelmans Limousines & Services has, of course, other cars at its disposal, such as Mercedes cars of the S series, BMW cars of the 7 series or luxury Mercedes minivans. Skilled multilingual drivers, knowing all about formal requirements, provide transfers according to the clients' wishes. Backed with a solid tourism training, they can also be an excellent guide. Depending on the type of demand, Breugelmans drivers can be affected to the clients' car for the time of the mission.
